

10.C.4

Consider an aircraft powered by a jet propulsion cycle. Improving the isentropic efficiency of the turbine:

Answer: Increases the thrust

Explanation: When you make the turbine work more efficiently, it can take more power from the hot gases coming out of the engine. This extra power helps the plane push forward with more force.